

Are your profits in your pocket... or down the Drain?

With the business climate changing so quickly today, so must your business. Economic conditions, client and staff demands, and increased costs may be bringing your business down. Drain, Inc is your biggest competitor....what are you doing to beat the competition?

Is your company outperforming the competition or racing against the wind? Are your profits in your pocket, or down the drain? Whatever the current status of your business, Stanford Management Consulting can get you moving in the right direction.

- Are you generating all the profit you should?
- Is your net profit where you want it to be?
- How much more profit can be generated now?
- What are the positive and negative factors affecting your profit? Were they planned for or unexpected?
- What plans are needed to increase your profit?
- Who, other than yourself, is accountable for profit goals?
- How many people share in your profits?
- If your profit would suddenly increase, what would you do with the money?

If you don't like your answers to these questions then this Drain, Inc seminar is for you!
